WIRED Online Course

SOUND ADVENTURES with Jo Kennedy

Tuesday's 6-7.30pm from 5th July to 9th August on Zoom

Free music technology course for young people living in Yorkshire! We welcome all girls, young women, non-binary people and other marginalised genders aged 11-18 years old. No experience is necessary and you don't have to be able to play a musical instrument.

During this six-week introductory audio course, learn about making audio recordings, edit them together and creatively use other sounds in your audio piece. By the end of the course, you'll create a mini podcast episode on a topic of your choice.

You just need a mobile phone for recording, and a laptop or desktop computer to attend via Zoom, and carry out sound editing work.

To sign up for a place on the online course, you can either email us at info@yorkshiresoundwomen.com to request an application form or download it from the 'News' page on our website.

About the Music Leader:

Jo Kennedy lives in Todmorden, West Yorkshire. She works in sound, including sound design, making sound art and sound walks, producing a nature podcast, running technical and creative workshops, and recording and editing sound for other people. Find out more at https://www.jokennedysound.com

Yorkshire Sound Women Network is all about inspiring and enabling women and girls to explore sound and music technology in Yorkshire and beyond. Check out our website for events and resources, and to sign up to our mailing list:
